Comedians:

August 6th

Chris Voth – appeared in three seasons of “Last Comic Standing” on NBC and Comedy Central and appeared prominently in the commercials for both. Nearly a 10-year comedy veteran, Voth is a past winner of the Miller Lite Comedy Competition of Denver and has worked with everyone from Dave Chappelle to Linda Ronstadt. Called “a name to watch” and “a very funny guy” by the Rocky Mountain News, Voth began his stand-up “career” in the Los Angeles area in the late 1990’s. He moved to Colorado in 1998 to hone his craft in a less-saturated and higher-elevated market. In 2002, he moved to San Francisco, becoming a regular at the comedy clubs in the Bay Area, and in 2006 returned to Denver.

Bob “The Polish Madman” Golub – is the quintessential realized American dream. Poor kid from a family of ten, leaves a one-movie theater western Pennsylvania steel mill town and through sheer fortitude and drive becomes a headlining comedian and movie actor. Bob’s vast array of experience in the entertainment world has lead him on “The Tonight Show” to a role in Martin Scorsese’s 1990 blockbuster film “Goodfellas.” In his relentless pursuit of the role he landed, was quoted by Ed Masley of the Pittsburgh Press, describing what led him to his part. “I didn’t know any better” Golub says of his first interview with the casting director. “I went in there dressed as Jimmy the Gent with 2,000 cash and a gun. This resulted in being cast as a tough truck driver in the dinner scene. Golub spent six months doing character research, which led him, mistakenly, to John Gotti’s lair, which almost got him shot. The Jimmy the Gent role went to another actor by the name of De Niro.

August 13th

Sam Adams – Smooth. Clever. Clean. Colorful. Funny. Those words are used to often describe Sam Adams, who jumped on stage to perform comedy for the first time in 2001 at age 41. No, he doesn’t look like the guy on the beer bottle. For the record, this Sam Adams is the Denver, Colorado – based stand-up comedian who was a winner at the 2009 Great American Comedy Festival.

David Testroet - Born in Iowa, Testroet has an easy Mid-West delivery. With a quick laugh and a shift of a eyebrow and soon you’re in David’s world. From Comedy Clubs and Theaters across the United States and Canada to flying across the seas for five different tours to entertain the US Military, Testroet delivers a fast, funny show anyone can enjoy. Material that twists from Darwin to Grizzly bears and sharp improvisation skills developed with over twenty years of stage experience. A well-established harmonica player, David has incorporated this into his act. From rock and roll to his original songs like the “Big Guy Blues.”

August 20th

Stephanie McHugh – was a finalist on Season 3 of Nick at Nite’s Funniest Mom contest on Nick at Nite. She also had a cameo appearance in final project of TV Guide’s America’s Last Producer grand prize winner Gwen Uzuko. Steph opened for Kathleen Madigan from the TV show Last Comic Standing, when Kathleen taped her DVD at the Boulder Theater. She was a finalist in the Laugh Across America Contest and won a trip to the Las Vegas Comedy Festival where she performed at the Stardust Casino. She also was a semi finalist in Oxygen's Hit TV Series Girls Behaving Badly Nationwide Talent Search. Stephanie won the 2002 Summer Comedy Contest at Wits End Comedy Club in Westminster, Colorado. She performs all over the mountain region and is a regular at the prestigious Comedy Works.

Phil Palisoul – with a remarkably unique, self-deprecating style combined with side-splitting material, Phil Palisoul's well-polished stand-up routine has made a huge hit at comedy clubs, cruise ships, casinos, and corporate events across the country. In addition to many television appearances, including The Tonight Show with Jay Leno, NBC's Last Comic Standing, and Comedy Central's Premium Blend, Phil has performed at the prestigious HBO-Aspen Comedy Festival and the Comedy Festival in Las Vegas and has opened in concert for such legendary comedians as Jerry Seinfeld and Dennis Miller.

August 27th

Jeff Wozer - Wozer operates from a secluded A-Frame in the Colorado mountains, where people are few and bears are many. A perfect perch, or so he claims, for balancing work with an obsessive kink for residing in areas that don't treat winters like cheap approximations. On the writing side Jeff's articles, mainly humor, have appeared in over 30 regional and national publications including Outside Bozeman, Rocky Mountain Sports, and Dining Out Miami. In addition to writing Jeff works as a full-time, nationally touring stand-up comedian (www.jeffwozer.com) based out of the world famous Comedy Works in Denver, Colorado. He has worked with the likes of Dave Chappelle, Dave Attell, Lewis Black, Mitch Hedberg, and Brian Regan.

Kevin Fitzgerald - began his professional comedy career in 1986. Since that time, he has worked at countless clubs and colleges across the nation alongside some of America's most popular stand-up comics. He has opened for such comedy acts as Bob Hope, Larry the Cable Guy, Sinbad, and Lewis Black. He has also opened for such musical acts as Emmy Lou Harris, Randy Travis, and the Neville Brothers – and even worked in Branson at the Grand Ole Opry, and in numerous shows in Las Vegas. Kevin performs for at least one hundred corporate audiences each year, and is in widespread demand as an after dinner speaker.

Dr. Fitzgerald has been one of the veterinarians featured for 10 seasons on the popular Animal Planet TV series "Emergency Vets". He has also been seen on Steve Irwin's "New Breed Vets", "The Crook and Chose Show", "Maury Povich", and on the Country Music Channel. Since 2003, Kevin has done an animal news piece on the morning news for Denver's Channel 2 (the CWB). He has appeared in four one-hour long Animal Planet specials, the last of which was entitled "Things Pets Swallow", which he also narrated. He believes that laughter is an important part of everyday life, and that nobody could ever laugh too much.
